

Serving the Nation's Water Management Agencies

Be a part of the national organization that provides a voice for regional, state, and local water resources agencies.

TOGETHER, WE MAKE OUR VOICES HEARD.

INFORMATION

We share our expertise and collaborate to solve problems via national conferences and annual meetings, Washington D.C. roundtables, workshops cosponsored with federal agencies, and our national office.

INFLUENCE

Members have the opportunity to shape Council policy, priorities, and Congressional testimony. We come together with concerns, ideas, and insight through ample networking opportunities through meetings, conferences, and workshops.

IMPLEMENTATION

As the national voice for water resource managers, we ensure that the concerns of our members from all geographical areas are heard. Representatives from ICWP testify before Congress on behalf of our members and present our members' interests to key federal agencies.

SOLVING Today's Water Management Challenges Together

Successfully solving water management challenges requires us to have a greater awareness and more sophisticated understanding of the issues at stake. Given how quickly policy issues and legislation can develop or change, ICWP members find it especially important right now to have a presence in Washington. As the national voice for regional, state, and local water resources agencies, ICWP has served exactly this function—but the issues facing us today require us to do more.

POLICY

ICWP takes a stance on a wide array of water policy issues that have national reach. Our positions are governed by principle statements that inform our advocacy and policy implementation efforts.

COMMITTEES

We host four standing committees that advance our membership's water policy priorities: Interstate Water Management, Water Data & Science, Legislation & Policy, and Water Planning.

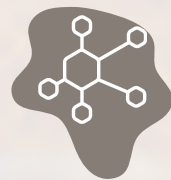

EVENTS

Through face-to-face meetings with key federal agencies, as well as our annual meetings and conferences, our members directly contribute to our nation's water policies and legislation.

NETWORKING

ICWP offers numerous opportunities to learn, collaborate and discuss in order to ensure that our members' voices are heard at the federal and congressional levels.
